A Letter to Our Remington Family

To those who proudly carry Remington with them,
Thank you. Not just for choosing Remington accessories, but for choosing a way of life that stretches far beyond the logo on your gear. For more than two centuries, Remington has been woven into the lives of hunters, shooters, and outdoorsmen and women across America. But what makes us proudest isn't just our history, it's the fact that people like you continue to live it every day.

Remington has never been just a brand; it is a lifestyle. It's the early mornings in the duck blind. The quiet walk into the woods before the sun rises. The afternoons at the range, fine-tuning your craft. It's the stories shared around tailgates and campfires, the memories made with friends and family, and the pride of carrying a piece of American tradition with you, whether that's in your hand, over your shoulder, or on your belt.

When you choose Remington accessories and licensed products, you're not just buying something functional. You're carrying forward a legacy. You're showing the world that the outdoors still matter. That heritage still matters. That craftsmanship and tradition still have a place in today's fast-moving world.

We're honored to be part of your story, and we're grateful you've chosen to be part of ours.

With gratitude,
Your Remington Team

Suppressor Cleaning

Suppressor Cleaning Kit

Searching for an easy way to clean suppressors? Consider The Suppressor Cleaning Kit. Proper maintenance of your suppressor is just as essential as caring for your firearms. Regular cleaning helps keep your suppressor effective and extends its lifespan. To get the best results from your suppressor, make sure you care for it outside the woods or range.

Each Kit includes: 1 bottle of our custom cleaning fluid, 1 cleaning tube, a cleaning tray, two brushes and a pick.

Suppressor Cleaning Fluid

Great when used in conjunction with our Suppressor Cleaning Kit for maximum results. These two 16-oz bottles are formulated with a our proprietary solution that breaks up tough, caked-on fouling on your suppressor. Keep your suppressor running like new and preserve its life span with this specialty made cleaning product.

Suppressor Cleaning Tubes

A popular approach to cleaning suppressors is soaking them in a solvent that loosens up fouling and performance-compromising debris. These suppressor tubes are best used when cleaning multiple suppressors simultaneously and are filled with a solvent suited explicitly for your suppressor. Ditch the mason jars and start custom-made tubes.

NEW PRODUCTS

The same great lubricant since 1913, Rem Oil is the most versatile gun oil available. Its advanced formula cleans, lubricates, and protects your firearms, ensuring they run smoothly and look new. Rem Oil penetrates the smallest metal pores, then leaves a protective film that reduces metal-to-metal wear and displaces even microscopic traces of moisture. The best part, Rem Oil products are available in diverse sizes to match the job at hand. Plastic squeeze bottles dispense oil one drop at a time, making them especially useful when lubricating small individual parts. Aerosol cans help cover larger areas, and wipes are great for packing and carrying in the field.

A Partnership Poured Straight from the Barrel: Remington x Log Still Distillery

Some things just make sense together. Like a crisp fall morning and the sound of wings overhead. Like a trusted hunting buddy who knows your next move before you do. Like the smell of gunpowder and the promise of another day outdoors. And now, like Remington Ammunition and a glass of Kentucky's finest.

That's right. We've teamed up with Log Still Distillery, right off Kentucky's world-famous Bourbon Trail, to launch a partnership that's as bold, authentic, and unapologetically American as the brands behind it. It's a pairing born from tradition, perfected by craftsmanship, and fueled by a shared passion for doing things the right way.

Welcome to the table: a partnership poured straight from the barrel.

Two Traditions, One Spirit

At Remington, we know a thing or two about tradition. For more than 200 years, our green box has been trusted by hunters, shooters, and sportsmen across this great country. It's not just ammunition, it's the sound of generations passing down their love for the outdoors, the feel of a well-worn rifle stock on opening day, the pride of knowing you're carrying the very best.

Log Still Distillery shares that same heartbeat. Tucked in the rolling hills of Kentucky, just minutes from the Bourbon Trail, they craft spirits with the kind of care you can taste in every sip. They're not cutting corners. They're not chasing trends. They're doing what Kentuckians have done for centuries: pouring their passion into every barrel, every bottle, every moment shared with friends around a fire.

When we met the folks at Log Still, it didn't take long to realize we were cut from the same cloth. Both of us build with our hands. Both of us live for the outdoors. Both of us believe that the best things in life are simple, honest, and made to be shared.

So we thought: why not share them together?

The Spirit of the Hunt

This partnership isn't about putting logos side by side. It's about bringing together two worlds that belong together, hunting and hospitality, craftsmanship and camaraderie, precision and passion.

Picture this: you've had a long day in the field. Maybe it was a duck blind on the Mississippi flyway, maybe a deer stand in the Ozarks, maybe a clay shoot with buddies who claim they "used to be better." Either way, you've earned that moment at the end of the day. The dog's curled up by the fire. Supper's on the stove. And on the table? A bottle of Log Still, waiting to be poured.

That's the kind of moment this partnership was made for. Because whether it's brass casings or charred oak barrels, we're both in the business of building memories worth savoring.

More Than a Name on a Bottle

We'll be honest, there's no shortage of collaborations in today's world. But we didn't want this to be one of those "slap a logo on it and call it a day" deals. This partnership goes deeper.

Together with Log Still, we're creating experiences and products that celebrate the outdoors lifestyle. At the heart of it is the Remington Tasting Room and Lodge, where visitors can sip fine bourbon, stay in comfort, and swap hunting stories long into the night.

And if live music is your kind of field call, Log Still also brings the heat with their concert venue, welcoming big-name acts and rising stars alike. It's the kind of place where hunters, shooters, and bourbon lovers can gather, raise a glass, and be part of something unforgettable.

Every part of this partnership will carry the same pride, grit, and authenticity you expect from the Remington name.

Why Log Still?

Admittedly, we're picky about who we partner with. Because when your logo is stamped on ammo boxes from Arkansas to Alaska, you don't just let anyone borrow that trust.

Log Still earned it.

They're a family-run operation with roots as deep as the oaks that line their drive. They believe in craftsmanship over shortcuts. They believe in community. They believe in putting in the hard work now so that the reward is worth savoring later. Sound familiar?

That's the Remington way, too.

And maybe most importantly, Log Still knows what it means to celebrate the outdoors. From bourbon shared in the tasting room to live shows under the stars at their concert venue, they understand how people gather, connect, and make memories. That's the kind of partner we want by our side.

Raising a Glass to What's Next

So, what can you expect? Here's a taste of what's coming down the line:

Remington Tasting Room & Lodge:

A place for hunters, shooters, and bourbon lovers to gather, swap stories, and kick back after a day outdoors.

Concerts & Experiences: From live music to bourbon tastings, we're bringing together communities where good shooting and good sipping go hand-in-hand.

Collaborative releases aged to perfection and stamped with the Big Green brand you know and trust.

This is just the beginning. Like a fine barrel aging in a quiet Kentucky distillery, the best is yet to come.

"For the Hunters, the Shooters, the Storytellers

At the end of the day, this partnership isn't about us. It's about you.

It's for the duck hunter who wakes up at 3 a.m. and still wouldn't trade the morning mist for anything.

It's for the clay shooter who knows that the real win is laughing at misses with friends.

It's for the dad passing down his first rifle to his son.

It's for the group gathered around a tailgate after a long day, swapping stories, swapping shells, and swapping pours.

That's who we built this for."

Because Remington has always been more than ammo, and Log Still has always been more than bourbon. Together, we're building a community that celebrates what matters: hard work, good friends, and the simple joys of the outdoors.

A Final Word from Big Green

We've always believed that life's best moments don't happen in boardrooms or behind screens. They happen in duck blinds, on back porches, and around fire pits. They happen with a shotgun in one hand and a glass in the other.

That's why this partnership with Log Still Distillery feels so right. It's not about chasing trends. It's about honoring tradition. It's about doing things the way they ought to be done. And it's about raising a glass to the people who make it all worth it: you.

So here's to the hunts ahead.

Here's to the shots that hit and the ones that don't.

Here's to the friends who become family and the memories that last a lifetime.

Here's to Remington. Here's to Log Still. Here's to the spirit of the outdoors.

From Remington to Rem Arms: Two Centuries of American Firearms Tradition

For more than two centuries, the name Remington has stood for American firearms history—across hunting fields, battlefields, and shooting ranges. Founded in 1816, Remington earned the distinction of being the oldest gunmaker in the United States, a name woven into the traditions of hunters and shooters for generations.

Today, that legacy continues through Rem Arms, the company that acquired Remington's firearms business and proudly builds Remington Licensed Products. From their home in LaGrange, Georgia, the craftsmen and women of Rem Arms are committed to producing the same dependable rifles and shotguns that generations have trusted.

This isn't just about steel and walnut. It's about heritage. Every firearm from Rem Arms carries forward the Remington story—rooted in American grit, innovation, and perseverance.

The rifles and shotguns rolling off the line today are more than tools. They are a living link between Remington's historic past and its future. Whether it's the iconic Model 700 or the field-ready 870, these firearms shaped our culture and continue to set the standard.

When you hold a Rem Arms firearm, you're not just holding a gun. You're holding a piece of America's legacy.

Tradition Continues...

For generations, collectors and hunters have known what it means to have a good blade at their hip and how to tell the story behind it.

A trusty knife is more than just a tool for the field. It's a memory. It represents heritage and authentic craftsmanship, and this year Remington brings folks the iconic Bullet Knife as a fixed-blade.

The 2026 Bullet Knife, "The King of the Mountain" stands tall in a long line of legends. Each year, the Bullet Knife has marked a chapter in Remington's story, and this edition feels like the summit. Rugged in design, rich in detail, and made to be passed from one set of hands to the next, it's the kind of knife that doesn't just ride in your pocket, it rides in your story.

Every cut, every detail, every line etched into its design is a reminder that some things, like good memories and a well-made knife, will never go out of style.

Bullet Knives aren't just collectibles; they're heirlooms in waiting, ready to be carried, displayed, and remembered.

A Partnership Poured Straight from the Barrel: Remington x Log Still Distillery

Some things just make sense together. Like a crisp fall morning and the sound of wings overhead. Like a trusted hunting buddy who knows your next move before you do. Like the smell of gunpowder and the promise of another day outdoors. And now, like Remington Ammunition and a glass of Kentucky's finest.

That's right. We've teamed up with Log Still Distillery, right off Kentucky's world-famous Bourbon Trail, to launch a partnership that's as bold, authentic, and unapologetically American as the brands behind it. It's a pairing born from tradition, perfected by craftsmanship, and fueled by a shared passion for doing things the right way.

Welcome to the table: a partnership poured straight from the barrel.

Two Traditions, One Spirit

At Remington, we know a thing or two about tradition. For more than 200 years, our green box has been trusted by hunters, shooters, and sportsmen across this great country. It's not just ammunition, it's the sound of generations passing down their love for the outdoors, the feel of a well-worn rifle stock on opening day, the pride of knowing you're carrying the very best.

Log Still Distillery shares that same heartbeat. Tucked in the rolling hills of Kentucky, just minutes from the Bourbon Trail, they craft spirits with the kind of care you can taste in every sip. They're not cutting corners. They're not chasing trends. They're doing what Kentuckians have done for centuries: pouring their passion into every barrel, every bottle, every moment shared with friends around a fire.

When we met the folks at Log Still, it didn't take long to realize we were cut from the same cloth. Both of us build with our hands. Both of us live for the outdoors. Both of us believe that the best things in life are simple, honest, and made to be shared.

So we thought: why not share them together?

The Spirit of the Hunt

This partnership isn't about putting logos side by side. It's about bringing together two worlds that belong together, hunting and hospitality, craftsmanship and camaraderie, precision and passion.

Picture this: you've had a long day in the field. Maybe it was a duck blind on the Mississippi flyway, maybe a deer stand in the Ozarks, maybe a clay shoot with buddies who claim they "used to be better." Either way, you've earned that moment at the end of the day. The dog's curled up by the fire. Supper's on the stove. And on the table? A bottle of Log Still, waiting to be poured.

That's the kind of moment this partnership was made for. Because whether it's brass casings or charred oak barrels, we're both in the business of building memories worth savoring.

More Than a Name on a Bottle

We'll be honest, there's no shortage of collaborations in today's world. But we didn't want this to be one of those "slap a logo on it and call it a day" deals. This partnership goes deeper.

Together with Log Still, we're creating experiences and products that celebrate the outdoors lifestyle. At the heart of it is the Remington Tasting Room and Lodge, where visitors can sip fine bourbon, stay in comfort, and swap hunting stories long into the night.

And if live music is your kind of field call, Log Still also brings the heat with their concert venue, welcoming big-name acts and rising stars alike. It's the kind of place where hunters, shooters, and bourbon lovers can gather, raise a glass, and be part of something unforgettable.

Every part of this partnership will carry the same pride, grit, and authenticity you expect from the Remington name.

Why Log Still?

Admittedly, we're picky about who we partner with. Because when your logo is stamped on ammo boxes from Arkansas to Alaska, you don't just let anyone borrow that trust.

Log Still earned it.

They're a family-run operation with roots as deep as the oaks that line their drive. They believe in craftsmanship over shortcuts. They believe in community. They believe in putting in the hard work now so that the reward is worth savoring later. Sound familiar?

That's the Remington way, too.

And maybe most importantly, Log Still knows what it means to celebrate the outdoors. From bourbon shared in the tasting room to live shows under the stars at their concert venue, they understand how people gather, connect, and make memories. That's the kind of partner we want by our side.

Raising a Glass to What's Next

So, what can you expect? Here's a taste of what's coming down the line:

Remington Tasting Room & Lodge:

A place for hunters, shooters, and bourbon lovers to gather, swap stories, and kick back after a day outdoors.

Concerts & Experiences: From live music to bourbon tastings, we're bringing together communities where good shooting and good sipping go hand-in-hand.

Collaborative releases aged to perfection and stamped with the Big Green brand you know and trust.

This is just the beginning. Like a fine barrel aging in a quiet Kentucky distillery, the best is yet to come.

"For the Hunters, the Shooters, the Storytellers

At the end of the day, this partnership isn't about us. It's about you.

It's for the duck hunter who wakes up at 3 a.m. and still wouldn't trade the morning mist for anything.

It's for the clay shooter who knows that the real win is laughing at misses with friends.

It's for the dad passing down his first rifle to his son.

It's for the group gathered around a tailgate after a long day, swapping stories, swapping shells, and swapping pours.

That's who we built this for."

Because Remington has always been more than ammo, and Log Still has always been more than bourbon. Together, we're building a community that celebrates what matters: hard work, good friends, and the simple joys of the outdoors.

A Final Word from Big Green

We've always believed that life's best moments don't happen in boardrooms or behind screens. They happen in duck blinds, on back porches, and around fire pits. They happen with a shotgun in one hand and a glass in the other.

That's why this partnership with Log Still Distillery feels so right. It's not about chasing trends. It's about honoring tradition. It's about doing things the way they ought to be done. And it's about raising a glass to the people who make it all worth it: you.

So here's to the hunts ahead.

Here's to the shots that hit and the ones that don't.

Here's to the friends who become family and the memories that last a lifetime.

Here's to Remington. Here's to Log Still. Here's to the spirit of the outdoors.

From Remington to Rem Arms: Two Centuries of American Firearms Tradition

For more than two centuries, the name Remington has stood for American firearms history—across hunting fields, battlefields, and shooting ranges. Founded in 1816, Remington earned the distinction of being the oldest gunmaker in the United States, a name woven into the traditions of hunters and shooters for generations.

Today, that legacy continues through Rem Arms, the company that acquired Remington's firearms business and proudly builds Remington Licensed Products. From their home in LaGrange, Georgia, the craftsmen and women of Rem Arms are committed to producing the same dependable rifles and shotguns that generations have trusted.

This isn't just about steel and walnut. It's about heritage. Every firearm from Rem Arms carries forward the Remington story—rooted in American grit, innovation, and perseverance.

The rifles and shotguns rolling off the line today are more than tools. They are a living link between Remington's historic past and its future. Whether it's the iconic Model 700 or the field-ready 870, these firearms shaped our culture and continue to set the standard.

When you hold a Rem Arms firearm, you're not just holding a gun. You're holding a piece of America's legacy.

Tradition Continues...

For generations, collectors and hunters have known what it means to have a good blade at their hip and how to tell the story behind it.

A trusty knife is more than just a tool for the field. It's a memory. It represents heritage and authentic craftsmanship, and this year Remington brings folks the iconic Bullet Knife as a fixed-blade.

The 2026 Bullet Knife, "The King of the Mountain" stands tall in a long line of legends. Each year, the Bullet Knife has marked a chapter in Remington's story, and this edition feels like the summit. Rugged in design, rich in detail, and made to be passed from one set of hands to the next, it's the kind of knife that doesn't just ride in your pocket, it rides in your story.

Every cut, every detail, every line etched into its design is a reminder that some things, like good memories and a well-made knife, will never go out of style.

Bullet Knives aren't just collectibles; they're heirlooms in waiting, ready to be carried, displayed, and remembered.
