v. Remington Arms Company, LLC

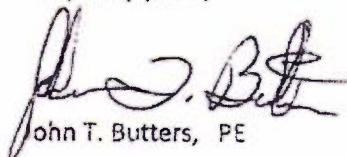

ECI File No. 8658

Dear Mr. Gary:

In accordance with my commission to participate in a joint examination of the subject Model 700 Remington rifle for the purpose of determining whether its condition and configuration would be conducive to an uncommanded discharge that occurred in the absence of a depressed trigger, I was present in Houston at Anderson Laboratories and active in that procedure. Based on that examination, it is my opinion as reflected in the functional notes which I recorded, the photographic and optical micrographic documentation of the condition and configuration of critical fire control parts and the observation and reportage of the results of scanning electron microscopy, that the rifle displayed no conditional nor configurational defects that would cause it to discharge in the absence of a depressed trigger. It is my understanding that by mutual agreement, all examination notes and documentation were to be shared between counsel for Remington and for the plaintiffs.

If I may be of further service, please contact me.

Very truly yours,

John T. Butters, PE
